The WAVE is deployed in several buildings in our county including the courthouse, the jail, the social services building, the county hospital, city hall and the library. Officers entering the jail routinely carry panic buttons with them so that they can summon back-up quickly if an incident arises. The WAVE is the first line of defense for many county employees. If someone starts to get irate at our personnel or becomes violent, a button is pushed which will cause a message to be delivered to the deputies as well as other law enforcement through their in car and hand held 800 MHZ radios as to where the officers need to respond. The presence of deputies at the scene early in the altercation can prevent an incident from escalating further. I have worked with the WAVE for many years and have been impressed with its ease of use, effectiveness and the customer service that SecureTech provides to support it. The immediacy of the WAVE helps us to improve the protection we can offer to our personnel and the public.
